Solo Acoustic

"Roper's sound: a bit slow, yet melodic; ambient, yet strangely catchy. It is acoustic rock with Roper's own unique touch on it, and it echoes with Colorado flavor [...] there are touches of country as well as some faster paced rock riffs that stand out at just the right times."

— Tim Wenger, Colorado Music Buzz magazine

"Rob Roper's music concocts striking similarities to Elvis Costello... pop rock with a lyrical edge."

— Sheryl Radetsky

"...wittily sarcastic, poignantly emotional, and humorously edgy, with moments of beauty and grace and sadness and reflection." — Patrick Nagel

"...'The Other Side of Nowhere' is all about the music [...] It's time you got to know Rob Roper." "4 stars."

— Jeffrey Sisk, The Daily News

"[On Misfit] Roper creates noticeable pop music... [he's] part folkie, part nerd, part conceptual artist, and part cultural critic."

— Vintage Guitar

"On his last effort, 2011's Misfit, Rob Roper more than proved that he had sharp songwriting skills and a knack for penning some pretty damn witty lyrics ...The Other Side of Nowhere is equally engaging and potent." — Jon Solomon, Westword
